“ When my car broke down pulling out of my driveway, Brian dragged a huge car jack down the street to try and help me out. Thanks neighbor. Rest easy.

“ I met Brian through my bff, Sissy. He was very sweet the day I met him and I met his son. Sissy and I became close friends right away. Brian would laugh sometimes because he'd hear 1/2 of our conversations and he'd give us advice and he was like a therapist for us lol, that's how adorable he is to have as a friend and as a husband. I know how hard he worked and he deserves a medal for being such a hard worker 🏆. I am so sorry that my bff lost her soulmate. I know how crushed she is and I pray she gets through this because she's falling apart. Also little Brian and Morgan are suffering too and they've been helping their Mom too. Sissy knows I'd do anything for her but I'm recovering from spinal surgery. As soon as I'm good to drive far and sit long, I 'll be right up North to see her and help her. She deserves the best because she gave Brian her best and vice versa. They were meant for each other. I know I've only known them for 5 years but Sis told me her entire life story from when she first met Brian, and all the good and bad they've weathered many storms together and alone. I will be praying for Brian that the angels watch over him and I pray that Sissy stays healthy and medically ok. God Bless both Brian and Sissy. They were like PB&J. 💕💕💕🙏🙏🙏

“ Such a sad loss for our neighborhood and the family . Brian was a happy character you find very few times in life . Hard working and a loving family man . A man that never stopped , a man that was able to tell others how much he loved his wife and family without hesitation . Proud of his children , a good example of a man for others to follow . Cissy and family you are in our hearts . Larry , Katie , Kaitlyn and Ryan
