“ Dad, you left us to be in a better place, in Gods hands. You lived a full life and traveled extensively to many parts of the world. I could not fill your shoes, but I learned from you more than you think. The hobbies and skills you had were of passion that showed, second to none. I carry on your demeanor, work hard, try to save money, you'll need it someday. Like you said, "I always saw my father outside tending his garden, crazy!, And here I am doing the same". You always helped out when life got tough. The walk-in closet we built in my home is a reminder of your craftsmanship. You could build just about anything as I saw it. The past few years you told me that "I'm learning to smile" I will miss you Dad, every day, every week, every year, I will think of you, about what you have taught me over your lifetime. I will remember your voice as if we had just spoke. Now you will be able to watch over me from above and remind me to learn from your mistakes.

Glad I had the opportunity to see you at the very least that week. Keep an eye on me, I always looked up to you anyway no matter what the circumstance.

God Bless you

-Matthew
