“ I met Bill when he first came to BMW. Such a nice man. I was his "go-to" girl when he needed a little help with the computer, and he kept bringing "thank you" bottles until I had to ask him to stop. He quickly became a favorite, not only with everyone who worked at BMW, but also, and especially, with the customers who knew he was truly their advocate. He was, after all, the head of the Rapid Response Team, a title he bestowed on himself to soothe upset customers.

Bill was one of nature's true gentlemen - smart, funny and kind to everyone who came in contact with him. I saw him last year in a local restaurant, and he seemed as vigorous, enthusiastic and energetic as ever, even while recovering from cataract surgery.

The world is a poorer place without Bill, but I feel fortunate to have known him for a little while. My sincerest condolences to Mrs. Stuart and his family.

“ I had the privilege of working with Bill for sixteen years, six of those years together in the customer relations department. During those years I learned a lot from Bill, he was an example of dedication to his job and more importantly to his family.

He was honest, straight forward and he would say what needed to be said without reservation. I have many fond memories, stories and lessons that I will treasure about Bill and he will live on in my life as I strive to live up to his example.

To Mrs. Stuart and family, you are in my thoughts and prayers! He will truly be missed.

God bless you!
